JesseAfter spending the first part of my life trapped in a small town where it wasn't okay to be a makeup-wearing boy who liked boys, I swore I'd leave and never be anything but loud, proud, and unapologetically me. I've kept that promise. I'm following my dreams, have an apartment with my bestie, and get to dance my nights away at one of the hottest gay bars in Portland. The only downfall is Dane, the sexy bartender with a perma-scowl always aimed my way. The tension between us is so strong that even the clubgoers notice, and they eat that stuff up.

Our boss makes us dance on the bar together every Friday night. I might shake my booty a little more with Dane just because I love getting under his skin. Thankfully, my sister, Bree, and my niece, Hailey, make my days a whole lot brighter. I'm getting back on my feet, including a decent job as a bartender. But working in a gay club makes it harder to keep to myself. No way do I want to get reeled in by another charming, pretty face and

I can't let myself fall for him, though, because I'm searching for forever and he only wants casual. Skylar If you're looking for a good time, I'm your guy. I love hookups, shaking my booty at the club, and having fun. I've seen how love can hurt and have mended too many broken hearts to risk my own. Still, having Clark back in my life makes me feel grounded...and sort of mushy inside. It's not only because his chunky glasses turn him into an adorably hot Clark Kent. It's also how he makes me feel like I can be more. Which is why hooking up with him is a bad idea. But resisting him becomes impossible, and before I know it, each touch, kiss, and night spent together only makes me crave more. We want different things, so there's no way this will last. But Clark makes me consider breaking my rules and trying this boyfriend stuff for real. What's a guy to do when his best friend steals the heart he's afraid to give? I guess it comes down to potentially hurting him, or losing the only guy I've ever really wanted. Pretty wild, right?
