Robertson's account of his exploits as a crusading attorney are thrilling to read. Unfortunately I was introduced to this memoir as a core text in the NSW HSC. I have taught as part of the Conflicting Perspectives elective several times, which has ground the enjoyment out of it. Read it and enjoy but, if you can, avoid overanalysing.

Geoffrey Robertson is a QC who works within the human rights sphere. Don't get this on kindle (which I did first time round) there are too many pages (803) before 82 pages of notes. He updates the book every 4 years and this is the latest one (2012). It is perfect for the law course which I am currently studying.
